I think it is not the american way to penalize a company for working hard. taking the risks involved, and making a success.

I further feel that it is envy, or jealousy on the part of the others to accuse Microsoft of being a monopoly. after all, one of the biggest monopolies of all time is the U S Postal Service, and their service is poor in many cases, They fail to perform a suitable service to the american public.

So I say "Lay off microsoft, and let them continue to provide services that have become essential to the american public.
